Waveland Fire Chief David Garcia was surprised during the Wednesday city meeting to discover the reason his men had been hanging around all evening was not because they were interested in observing the inner workings of city government. Instead, they came to honor him, for his leadership and friendship for the past five years he has served as city fire chief. Waveland family remembers St. Joseph Day with altar

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Clyde and Pat Koerner of Arnold Street in Waveland opened their home to the public Tuesday for the 26th year of celebration in honor of St. Joseph.

An altar of thanksgiving to St. Joseph is traditionally laid out and blessed on his feast day, March 19.

For very private reasons, the Koerners prepare this feast in gratitude to the saint.

There were cakes in the shape of lambs; bread in the shape of crosses and staffs and palms; cookies, crispy and gooey; vegetables, stuffed and sauteed; meat and seafood dishes; and all sorts delectable delicacies.

The foods are given away to visitors who can leave a monetary donation, which is later given to a charity.

The tradition of the St.

Joseph Altar is from a time of drought and famine in Sicily. Following prayers to St. Joseph, rains fell and the people symbolically thanked him with a feast which was later divided and given to those who were the most in need.

The tradition came to America with the arrival of Sicilian immigrants and is practiced today as a personal offering for the fulfillment of a special request.

The "lucky bean," or fava bean, was used to feed cattle and during the time of drought. Farmers prepared the fava bean for the table when there was little else.

The bean is also a symbol of fertility, since it grows well in poor, rocky soil.

The importance of the bean grew in legend to suggest if you carry one, you will never be destitute; or if you place it in your pantry, there will always be food in the kitchen.

Bread is another food which has adopted a special meaning for the St. Joseph Altar. As a symbol of sustenance, bread, too, has adopted a special power from its association with the altar.

Should a storm approach one's home, the custom is to crumble some of the bread from a St. Joseph Altar into the storm and the home will be protected.

On the table of the Koerners' altar stood more than a feast fit for a king; there stood the devotion of two people who felt themselves blessed and wanted to share some of that good fortune with others.

St. Joseph is the patron saint of the needy, and the altar is the symbol of appreciation for assistance during difficult times.

Exchange Club holds second annual auction

The Exchange Club of Hancock County will hold its Second Annual Fun Rais'n Auction Friday, May 3, 7 p.m., at the Hancock County Civic Center.

Exchange Club president Gwen Myers said the auction will be held to raise funds for the support of the Exchange Clubs Family Child Center and other local ongoing child abuse prevention programs.

Items to be auctioned may be viewed starting at 6:30 p.m. prior to the auction. Hot dogs, popcorn and beverages will be available for purchase beginning at 6:30.

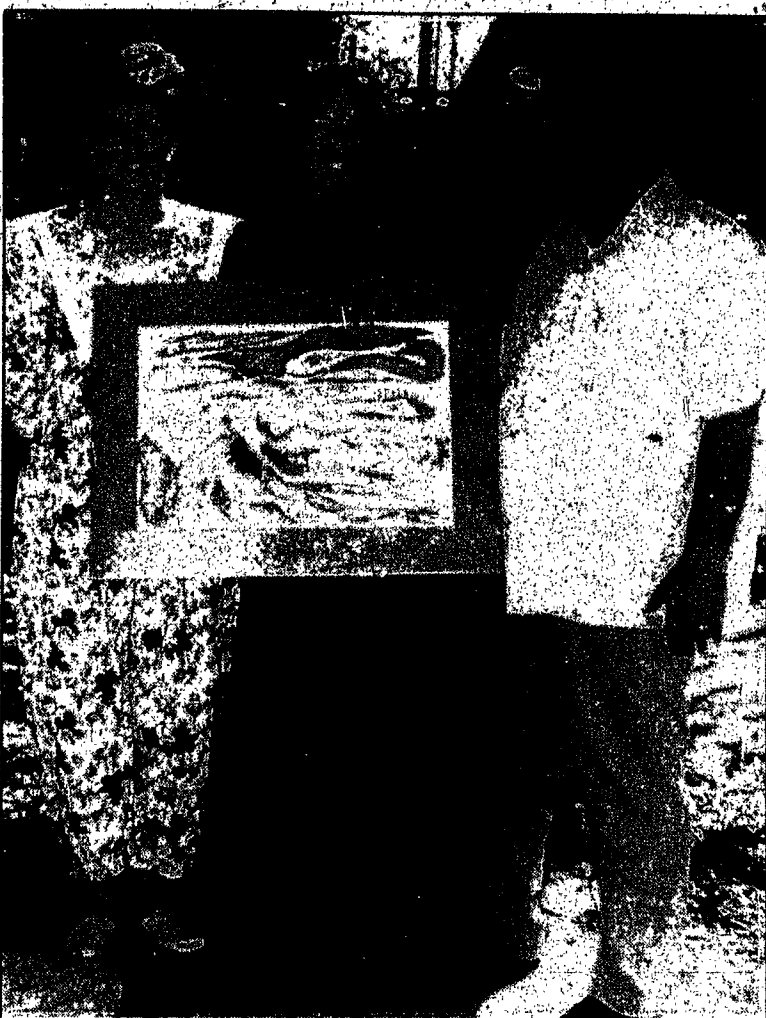

Col. Bob Glover of Waveland has volunteered to be the auctioneer again this year.

Auction committee chairperson Jeannie Deen of The Peoples Bank encourages all businesses in Hancock County and the surrounding area to donate products and services to be auctioned. These products and services may be of any type and value, and the donor will receive recognition for participating during the auction.

Area businesses will be contacted within the next few weeks by Exchange Club members to ask for their participation. Artists and other individuals with artwork or other items they are willing to donate are also urged to contact either Deen at 467-9296 or Jim Henrie at 467-9045. "Celebrity" items also will be auctioned.

The Exchange Club, founded in 1911, is a national organization of men and women from all walks of life who have joined together voluntarily to serve their communities in a wide range of humanitarian and patriotic activities. The principal areas of involvement are Americanism, youth, and community service programs.

Fun Rais'n

Gwen Myers, left, president of the Exchange Club of Hancock County, and auctioneer Col. Bob Glover of Waveland, invite the public to attend the Exchange Club's Second Annual Fun Rais'n Auction, where artwork from local artist Andrea Loiacano, center, will be among the items sold to support local child abuse prevention programs. Gaming

Lee said he signed it to clarify his position for the state legislators on the matter of local law enforcement capability. "It was brought to our attention that one of the state senators, who claimed to be representing the county, said the county law agencies didn't think they could handle the crime increase from the gambling. We can handle it."

Dorn's reason for signing the letter concurs with Lee's. Dorn said he signed it "because I think we can handle law enforcement down here."

Peterson's explanation for his signature on the letter was slightly different. He stated, "I signed it because I think that if the legislature doesn't fund the State Tax Commission this year, there will be tremendous pressure put on the commission while the legislature is not in session to issue gaming licenses without the proper background checks even being done."

"We support the funding only. I want to stress that. We do not want to weaken the law at all. That is not the intent."

Pass water service to be interrupted

Water service in Pass Christian will be interrupted March 25-27 on Church Street from Highway 90 to St. Louis Street.

Persons residing on West Second Street, Church Street, and St. Louis to Henderson Street will be affected.

Church Street will be closed to thru traffic from West Second Street to Highway 90 on these days.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Congratulations are in order for Bay High School's Distributive Education Clubs of America members who took a clean sweep in recent district competition.

The finalists will advance to the state competition where they will represent Mississippi in national competition.

The DECA winners from Bay High are Joe Cuevas, Shane Miller, Marmi Elmer, Vicki Reed and Kim Michel.

There are many students working about the community through the DECA program at Bay High.

This is the time of year when youngsters begin to get the itch to play baseball, and many have already signed for league play.

On March 29 and 30, Don Corr, formerly of Bay St. Louis will conduct a two-day baseball camp. The baseball camp will be for children ages 5-12.

Corr has served as a baseball coach at Jonesboro High School in Jonesboro, Georgia, for the past eight years.

Many area residents can remember Corr's achievements in baseball as a student at St. Stanislaus, Gulf Coast Community College and the University of Southern Mississippi.

On the 29th there will be a pitching camp from 4 until 8:30 p.m., and a hitting camp will be the next day from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The cost is $25 and $35, respectively, or $45 for both days.

Persons interested in further information may call Janet Corr at 467-4293 or Fee Genin at 467-4116.

Over the past several weeks, we have been publishing many stories and photos of science fair participants and winners from local schools.

Our youths can come up with some very interesting entries in the science fair competition, and everyone who participates should be congratulated.

I realize many parents are involved to a degree with some of the younger children, but the projects are very important for a child's education.

Regional competition was held on Friday at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum, and I am hoping we have had some winners among the area students.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Water projects clear the way for more trade and jobs

To commercial and recreational fishermen or the ocean-bound sea captain, the inter-coastal waterways of South Mississippi, our channels and rivers, are as important as interstate highways. Clear, unobstructed travel is essential to maritime trade.

Working to make South Mississippi more accessible to larger cargo ships and to improve navigability of our waterways is of the utmost importance to the economic well being of our area. I plan to work with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to see to it that a number of dredging and maintenance projects are initiated or completed in fiscal year 1992.

—Widening and deepening of the Port of Gulfport. Blessed with a unique geographical location, the Gulfport harbor has been handicapped for many years by the depth of its channel.

A $48 million project ($6 million to be appropriated in 1992) to dredge the port to its desired 36-feet will enable the port to accommodate larger, more modern container vessels, Port Director William Edwards says.

Currently, the economic benefits of the port are estimated to be $75 million and it provides jobs for 2,800 Mississippians. The deepening project is expected to create an additional 1,600 jobs within the next five years, double commerce at the port, and generate an additional $47 million in revenue.

—Annual maintenance of the Port of Pascagoula. A $4.9 million maintenance project to dredge areas of the Sound channel, river channel, bar channel and Bayou Casotte.

These investments will ensure that the Port of Pascagoula maintains its vital role in shipping bulk cargo, refining oil and producing seafood. Maintenance at the port will also help South Mississippi remain the premiere builder of surface combat ships.

According to the latest figures, activities at the Jackson County Port were estimated to provide jobs for at least 13,320 South Mississippians and produce an estimated $11 million in tax revenue.

—Bonnet Carré Freshwater Diversion Project. This $64 million project ($3.2 million in 1992) that will divert freshwater from the Mississippi River into the Mississippi Sound is expected to increase oyster production by 2 million pounds a year. At this year's market prices, that is a $15 billion boost to our economy.

—Gulf Coast Intracoastal Waterway dredging. The Intracoastal Waterway runs from Rigolets, La., to Apalachicola Bay, Fla. It serves as the primary navigation channel of the Gulf Coast. Congress is expected to approve a $3.6 million project to dredge various locations of the waterway.

—Wolf and Jourdan rivers dredged. Congress is presently taking steps to see to it that the Jourdan and Wolf rivers and Bayou Portage are regularly dredged.

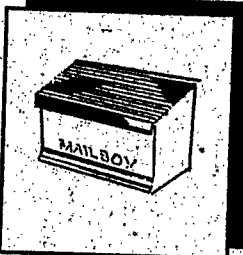

—Biloxi harbor dredging. Congress is also considering a proposed $633,000 project to dredge the west approach channel of the harbor.

—Flood Plain Maintenance in Perry and Jones counties. We have requested that the Corps provide technical services and planning guidance at the state and local level to prevent a recurrence of destructive flooding in these areas.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Opponents and proponents need to work together to control gambling

To the Editor:

My family invested in downtown Bay St. Louis 10 years ago. Until now, we had never considered dockside gaming which is only one more way to dispose of disposable income, like bingo.

However, dockside gaming was voted for by a majority of the people of Hancock County and we support it.

It is, to my knowledge, the only industry able and willing to come here immediately and invest large sums of money.

It will create a viable year-round tourist industry which will in turn provide jobs, tax revenue, better city services, better schools, and in my opinion, an enhanced way of life for many in Bay St. Louis.

We do not want uncontrolled gaming or uncontrolled growth. We realize that there must be much forethought and planning with everyone's best interest in mind.

Further, it would be unfair to deny the opportunities and benefits for the many because of the fears of a few.

I understand that change is real, change is unpredictable, change is scary, but more importantly, change is inevitable.

So, in the spirit of understanding and positive growth, I would like to propose a unique concept, namely, "cooperation" and suggest that the opponents and proponents of this issue join together to ensure that everyone's concerns and dreams for the future are addressed.

Let's unite as citizens of Bay St. Louis and Hancock County to lead our community into the 21st century with pride and a new-found prosperity for all.

The time to act is now, but we must proceed with reason and knowledge and not fear and suspicion. We can create a clean, quiet, beautiful and intelligent community in which we may work, live, and raise our children in peace and dignity with respect for all people.

It is possible! Think positive! Ken Murphy Bay St. Louis

Beach erosion problem continues in Waveland

To the Editor:

I am concerned about the erosion of our beach in Hancock County. My family has owned beach front property since 1983. In that time, I have watched our beach wash away.

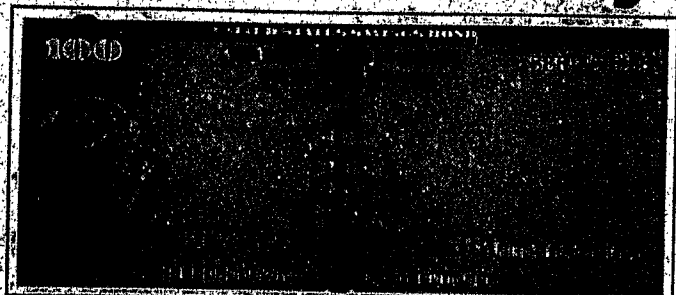

I remember when I was younger, it took a long time to walk across the beach to get to the water. Now, I take just a few steps away from Beach Boulevard and I am standing in the waves.

When I was a small child, I practically lived on the beaches in Bay St. Louis and Waveland during the summer. Now, where will I go during the summer? Where will I spend the rest of my teenage years?

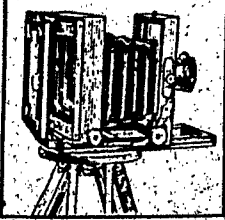

I ask that we, as citizens of Hancock County, find a solution to the erosion of our beautiful beach.

Sincerely,
Peter H. Martinez

Ninety-Five Years Ago

—Jackson, Miss., March 18—The bill authorizing the state to build a Capital, at a cost of $550,000, has failed to pass and will remain so for this session at least, the House and Senate failing to concur as to the site. There is much disappointment caused thereby throughout the state, but good hope is found in the fact that Governor McLaurin, who is in favor of a new building, said the other day to a prominent Coast representative he intended to call a special session in June to have the legislature reconsider its action, and further said he felt confident that a million dollars without any opposition would be appropriated. (Editor's note: It appears that things are still the same in Jackson).

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

We live amid an incredibly rich treasure trove of thoughts, words and actions every waking second of our lives. So rich is this vast trove that, by comparison, every other treasure pales into shadows. Our sole problem seems to be that we have such a small appreciation of our ever-available treasure.

Mind you, I am not speaking of a trove disconnected from our relation to one another as humans, but only in conjunction with how we connect to each other. It is not surprising, then, that we frequently take these treasures for granted, since we have an awful tendency to take one another for granted.

Just, how great even the smallest of these treasures can be is stated clearly by the Master himself: "Whoever gives only a cup of cold water to one of these little ones to drink because he is a disciple - amen, I say to you, he will surely not lose his reward" (Mt. 10: 42).

A cup of cold water is certainly not much of itself; yet, it is part of the measure which Jesus lays down for ultimate salvation: "Come, you who are blessed by my Father. Inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. For... I was thirsty and you gave me drink" (Mt. 25: 34-35).

By equating himself to the least of his sisters and brothers anywhere, anytime, under any conditions, Jesus accomplished what Midas or any other person could only dream of: he turned even the slightest of our actions into a value which infinitely outstrips gold, platinum, precious stones or any material thing.

Since a cup of cold water is so relatively insignificant, we find the true depth and worth of our treasure trove by comparing a cup of water to other things which we do. If giving a cup of water has such a cosmic kick to it, what about the thousands of far greater things which we can do for each other?

What about the human, not to mention spiritual, potency of all those other corporal works of mercy mentioned by Jesus:

All in perspective

feeding the hungry, housing the homeless, clothing the naked, caring for the sick, or visiting the prisoner?

Combining the Bible, tradition adds the spiritual works of mercy to the corporal works of mercy singled out by Jesus: counseling the doubtful, instructing the ignorant, admonishing the sinner, comforting the sorrowful, forgiving offenses, bearing wrongs patiently, and praying for the living and the dead.

It makes us feel good just to enumerate and dwell on these corporal and spiritual works of mercy, because they are so fundamentally human, heart-warming and priceless.

Just as in the Last Judgment scene depicted in Matthew 25, the electricity which they generate in our everyday life is beyond all calculation and value.

Add the "fun" things to this equation, and you will discover that these fun things are some of the neatest, most effective and most efficient tools for accomplishing some of the corporal and spiritual works of mercy. They help get us through the tough areas of Christian action, and, at the same time, they are fun.

The fun things, of course, are the numerous signs of encouragement, support and affection which we display toward each other every day under innumerable sets of circumstances.

A handshake, a pat on the head or shoulder, a love tap, a smoothing of the hair, an embrace, a kiss, a smile, any gesture of affirmation is fun.

And just think: even the fun things are powerful vehicles of reconciliation, of healing, of thanks, of praise and of holiness.

The following anonymous poem was submitted by Virginia Thomas of St. Ann Altar Society:

Letter from a Friend

I just had to write to tell you how much I love you and care for you. Yesterday I saw you walking and laughing with your friends. I hoped that soon you'd want Me to walk along with you, too. So I painted you a sunset to close your day and whispered a cool breeze to refresh you. I waited, and you never called. I just kept on loving you.

As I watched you fall asleep last night, I wanted so much to touch you. I spilled moonlight onto your face - trickling down your cheeks as so many tears have. You didn't think of me. I wanted so much to comfort you.

The next day I exploded a brilliant sunrise into a glorious morning for you. But you woke up late and rushed off to work - you didn't even notice. My sky became cloudy and my tears were the rain.

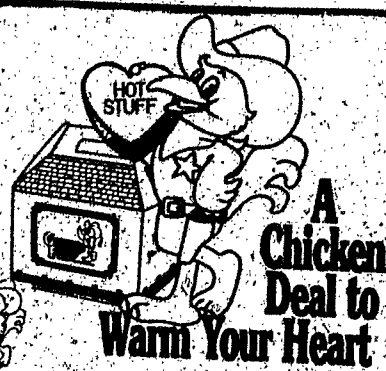

I really love you. I try to say it in the quiet of the green meadows and in the blue sky. The wind whispers My love throughout the tree-tops and spills into the vibrant colors of all the flowers.

I shout it to you in the thunder of the great waterfalls and compose love songs for the birds to sing for you. I warm you with the clothing of My sunshine and perfume the air with nature's sweet scent. My love for you is deeper than any ocean and greater than any need in your heart. If you'd only realize how I care.

My Dad sends His love. I want you to meet Him. He cares so. Fathers are just that way. So, please, call me soon. No matter how long it takes, I'll wait. Because I love you.

Your friend,
Jesus

Slidell Lions plan Jail N Bail

The Slidell Noon Lions Club has an "arresting" activity lined up for Wednesday, Apr. 10 at the Slidell City Auditorium. On that day, dozens of local officials and community leaders will be rounded up and sent to jail, all for a good cause.

The Noon Lions Club will be sponsoring the Jail N Bail to raise funds for Slidell Memorial Hospice and the Lions Eye Foundation. For a $25 donation, local law enforcement agencies will arrest your favorite criminal and toss them into the slammer until they are able to raise bail. The fun starts at 7 a.m. and continues on through 6 p.m. with over 100 people expected to be arrested for this event.

The Noon Lions Club has been holding the Jail N Bail fund raiser for the past five years, and has raised over $4,000 every year for worthy causes. The two people who manage to raise the most bail will be rewarded with an early release and a steak dinner, Moran said.

For more information, or to arrange the arrest of someone, contact Ralph Moran at 641-5297.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy
McGuire Caire

It's not a whit too soon to start planning your Easter dinner, or your Passover meal, is it? You'll find a wealth of choices at our area supermarkets these days, you may be sure.

Both of these so-important religious holidays are heralds of Spring; and this year the first evening of Passover, commemorating the exodus of the Jews from slavery in Egypt occurs this coming Friday (March 29) while Easter, celebrating the resurrection of Jesus, falls on next Sunday (March 31). So, it's high time to plan your own religious celebration!

As I observed a bit earlier, you'll find a bountiful supply of the foods you need for the festive meal, and at good prices, too. The Passover meal is a challenge to the cook, as all food must be without leaven, this is, anything prepared with yeast, baking powder or likely to ferment easily; but down through the centuries, cooks have met the challenge, deliciously! The Easter dinner, although less structured than the Passover one, is just as significant in Christian tradition.

Lamb, a standby ever since the Biblical days, conveys the sense of Jesus as the Lamb of God, who by his death atoned for the sins of the world. Lamb is also the traditional Easter dinner for Greek Orthodox Christians, who give their lamb roasts a special tang with lemon and herbs.

I think that there is nothing quite so festive and traditional as a glistening Easter ham, complete with pineapple rings and spicy cloves and all that! And, what I especially like about a ham is that, of all the big roasts, ham is probably the simplest and tastiest to finish up with one good meal after another in turn.

But, if your palate leans toward beef for your Easter feast, don't worry. There are specials on beef roasts and steaks all around the place, from chuck roasts and chuck rib eye steaks to top sirloin steaks and round steaks and T-bone steaks. There are also whole rib eyes, boneless and sliced free.

As for lamb, whether you're looking for a leg of lamb, or shoulder or other cuts, for chops, you're sure to find a good cut for your money. Perhaps you'll try:

MARINATED LEG OF LAMB (In Lemon Juice and Olive Oil)

- 1 (6 to 7 lb. leg of lamb—Marinade)
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. dried oregano
- 1 tsp. dried thyme
- 1 tsp. paprika
- 1 tsp. pepper
- 1/3 cup olive oil
- 2 tsp. fresh lemon juice

Whisk together all the marinade ingredients until creamy. Place the lamb in a plastic bag, pour the marinade over and seal the bag. Let stand at room temperature for 2 hours, turning occasionally. Preheat the oven to 325 degrees.

Remove the lamb from the marinade bag and place in roasting pan. Roast, uncovered, at 325 degrees 20 to 25 minutes per pound. The meat should be pink to enjoy the natural juices. (8 to 10 servings)—from Winners by the Junior League of Indianapolis.

If your needs are smaller, choose a smaller cut and adjust seasonings accordingly; but leftover lamb has so many uses—curry for instance, so it won't be difficult to use up the leftovers.

Or you might prefer a lamb shoulder roast or lamb chops. As for ham, from picnics to boneless to ham portions or whole hams, they crowd the meat counters. Here's a seemingly fancy but easy way I like to make use of leftover ham. Here's:

JAMBON PERSILLE (Just Ham 'n' Parsley)

- 4 to 5 lbs. cooked ham, cut into 1-inch to 1 1/4-inch cubes
- 3/4 cup water
- 3 cups consomme
- 1/2 cup white wine
- 1/4 cup tarragon vinegar
- 1 tsp. dried tarragon
- 1/3 cup chopped parsley

Arrange the ham cubes in a large glass or porcelain bowl. Soak the gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water. Heat the consomme, wine, vinegar and the remaining one-fourth cup of water, and add to the gelatin, stirring until dissolved. Cool the liquid slightly and add tarragon and parsley.

Pour the mixture over the ham, which should be covered by the liquid. Place a plate on top and weight it down. Chill until completely set and firm. To serve, unmold the ham and slice it, or cut into thin slices in the bowl. (8 to 10 servings).

(I've used this recipe for years, especially for a buffet table, ever since I first found it in writings by that gourmet of gourmets, the late James Beard.)

Fresher than fresh seasonal produce continues to crowd the vegetable bins; and in the fruit bins, don't overlook those Louisiana strawberries coming into the markets in increasing numbers, or the imported red, white or blue grapes, or my favorite, white-green seedless grapes.

MYSTERY!

In a role completely different from his heroic "Lawrence of Arabia," Peter O'Toole stars as a sinister, depraved villain in "The Dark Angel," a spine-chilling story of treachery, deceit and murder on "Mystery," which airs at 8 p.m. Sunday, March 24 on Mississippi ETV.

Adapted from Uncle Silas, a romantic Gothic novel by Sheridan le Fanu, "The Dark Angel" sets up a classic confrontation between innocence and evil in 19th-century England. O'Toole is the evil one, the malevolent Uncle Silas.

Innocence is portrayed by his niece, Maud (Beatrice Edney) a beautiful 17-year-old whose immense fortune Uncle Silas schemes to get.

ON-THE-JOB INJURY?

Introducing The Work Hardening Program At Slidell Memorial Hospital

Returning to work after an on-the-job injury can be a time-consuming and costly process. Missed work days and lengthy therapy programs can hinder a worker's productive return to employment. The Work Hardening program at Slidell Memorial Hospital can help most workers return to their jobs more quickly and safely than traditional therapy programs.

HOW IT WORKS

After being evaluated by our team of physicians and therapists, the injured worker receives an individualized program for rehabilitation. The Work Hardening program uses highly technical equipment designed to simulate the working environment so that most workers can return to work at their pre-injury level of productivity. Work Hardening uses computers that monitor the injured worker's achievements during therapy with special equipment with levers, pulleys, wheels, keyboards and other devices that simulate the work environment. Through this therapy, the worker begins a progressive program to strengthen muscles and promote endurance.

THE WORK HARDENING TEAM

The team consists of a physician who is a specialist in physical medicine and rehabilitation, physical therapists, occupational therapists, vocational counselors, rehabilitation counselors, rehabilitation facilitators, industrial facilitators, a registered dietitian and a clinical psychologist.

INDUSTRIAL REHABILITATION SERVICES

The Industrial Rehabilitation Services program at Slidell Memorial Hospital offers numerous programs to help local employers and their employees remain healthy and decrease their health care costs. These programs include Functional Assessments, Job Task and Job Site Analysis and Employee/Corporate Training.

For more information on Work Hardening or any of the Industrial Rehabilitation Services, call Slidell Memorial Hospital at (504) 649-8709.

Homeowners waste no time recycling cut grass

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

"In the United States, municipal organic wastes are mostly disposed of in landfills or soil burial sites, or by incineration. But there is increasing interest in the possibility of disposing of them by composting because of the growing scarcity of areas to be filled in, objections to air pollution produced by incineration and Today's Turf—Tomorrow's Earth."

The idea is simple, makes good sense and can be adopted by everyone with a lawn and mower. With grass cutting season just beginning, what better time to try this program yourself. The requirements are those of a good lawn management program: proper fertilization, watering and mowing.

Fertilize according to the type of grass you have on a recommended frequency sharp, and don't mow when the grass is wet. Mow at the recommended height for your type of grass, cutting frequently so the clippings are small. Remove the grass catcher from your mower.

Probably the biggest complaint about this program is the frequent mowing, yet Texas homeowners saved 7 hours of lawn care time over a six-month period by frequent mowing and no bagging or raking. If clippings accumulate on the lawn surface, give them a chance to dry. Then run the mower over them.

If you actively compost yard and kitchen waste and are accustomed to collecting grass clippings, continue to do so.

Don't Bag It and Grass cycling are for people who put plastic bags filled with lawn clippings on the curb for the city to pick up.

There's a world of information on lawn care in the newly revised "Establish and Manage Your Home Lawn," Extension publication 1322, available at every county extension office.

In Mississippi Gardens

the possibility of reducing costs of waste disposal from the sale of compost."

This statement printed in "Soil," the 1957 Yearbook of Agriculture, though 34 years old, is even more appropriate today. And yet, we are still debating the issue of landfills and organic wastes.

The current estimate on organic wastes going into landfills is about 29 percent by volume. Of this, 70 percent is yard waste and 30 percent is food waste.

Estimates of yard waste in the United States are placed at 30 million tons annually. Of this, 15 million tons are estimated to be grass clippings. If you have a problem visualizing such a quantity, it's 30 billion pounds, of which about 90 percent is water.

Because of the critical lack of landfill space, a number of states have already passed legislation banning yard waste such as leaves, grass clippings and tree trimmings from landfills. What this does is to throw the problem of how to dispose of these organic wastes back to local municipalities.

The composition and volume of yard waste varies with location and type of community, season of the year and community size. Suburban areas have more grass in proportion to other components. Rural areas have the least amount of yard waste, and leaves and brush are greater in quantity in early spring and fall. Grass is a major component in summer.

Municipalities faced with the yard waste problem have two immediately obvious alternatives: start a municipal composting program and encourage backyard composting along with programs to reduce organic wastes such as "Don't Bag It" and "Grasscycling" to eliminate clippings from the organic waste stream.

"Don't Bag It" is a program that was started as a pilot project in Fort Worth, Texas, in 1989. It proved so successful that the Professional Lawn Care Association of America started a nationwide program called "Grasscycling."

SPRING & SUMMER CAR CARE

Handy Tips To Help You Turn Your Wheels Into A Masterpiece

Get jump start on spring car care

Spring is the season of unpredictable weather. One day may be rainy and cool and the next day may be warm and sunny. With this in mind, car owners need to take precautions to help eliminate car problems.

Something as simple as replacing worn windshield wipers or changing the oil can prevent problems if taken care of in advance.

"Simple car maintenance can make a big difference on the road," says Jennifer Runyon, president of Lifetime Automotive Products, Inc. "Being caught in a sudden downpour is not the time to realize you need new wipers."

Here are some preventive auto maintenance guidelines for spring driving conditions.

Ten tips for spring car maintenance —Rotate tires and have air pressure checked by a professional. Winter driving causes wear and tear on tire tread.

—Check the brake fluid to ensure it's at the correct level. Your car's master cylinder, the heart of the brake system, contains a reservoir for brake fluid. Proper fluid level is vital to ensure brake performance.

—Winter sludge can clog filters. Therefore it's important to replace them with clean filters that will protect essential components of the engine and transmission from dirt, dirt and other foreign matter which enter the engine from outside air.

—Prolong your car's expensive finish and protect it from the sun's damaging rays by applying a sun protectant.

—Check hydraulic lifts on trunk, hatch and tailgate to make sure they are safe. Worn lifts allow hatches and hoods to fall, causing pain and injury, plus they're expensive to replace.

—Inspect windshield wiper blades each time you clean your windshield. Windshield wipers are essential to your driving safety, especially during the rainy spring season.

—Keep the windshield washer reservoir full. Use some solvent on a rag to clean off the wiper blades.

—With the summer travel season approaching, make sure your car will get the best gas mileage possible. Lifetime Fuel Booster is a 10 percent petroleum compound that reportedly decreases gas consumption over 10 percent and improves engine performance. It contains no synthetic chemicals which can clog engines.

—With increasing gas prices, a tank of gas is a valuable asset. Protect your fuel supply from siphoning and tampering with a locking cap. Some handy gas caps also features a secret compartment for emergency cash and spare keys to prevent lockouts.

—Check your car's ignition, carburetion and emissions components to ensure engine performance. A first class tune-up includes a thorough diagnostic check by a qualified technician.

Add tires to car care checklist

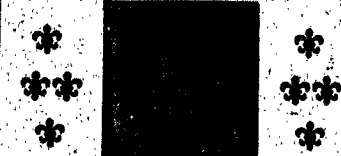

Preparations for spring and summer driving should include a close inspection of each tire on a vehicle to be sure winter's dry cold hasn't taken its toll, say tire technology engineers of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Motorists should look for any irregular or uneven treadwear which may indicate the need for mechanical adjustments to the vehicle.

Drivers should consider rotating their tires and having them rebalanced to get maximum handling and treadwear on summer's hot highways. Many tire dealers provide this service to their customers free of charge.

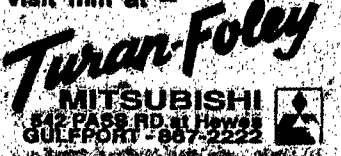

All motorists should regularly check the air pressure in their tires and maintain the level recommended by the vehicle manufacturer. This not only results in a safer condition for driving but also provides maximum tire treadwear and optimum gasoline mileage.

reports that front-wheel tires wear faster than the rear ones because most of the car's weight is in front—plus those tires also steer and drive the car. For optimum wear, tires should be rotated about every six to eight thousand miles.

Why oil changes are important. The oil in your car forms a thin layer between moving parts. This prevents metal-to-metal contact. However, over time, the oil becomes used, losing its lubricating properties.

The oil filter cleans by trapping particles in the oil. If the filter becomes clogged, the oil cannot flow through it, and the engine will suffer.

If it is not changed on a regular basis, a by-product of oil, allowing oil to circulate in the engine, accelerates wear.

Handy Tips To Help You Turn Your Wheels Into A Masterpiece

Prevent breakdowns by changing oil and filter

Changing our engine oil and oil filter frequently keeps your car's engine running trouble-free. It is one of the easiest and least expensive maintenance procedures to do yourself.

Once you gain experience, you will find changing the oil and filter in your car takes less time, less money, and is more convenient than taking it to a service station. In addition, you can make sure that only the highest quality oil and filters are used.

Why oil filter changes are needed

The oil in your car's engine forms a thin lubricating layer between moving engine parts. This prevents destructive metal-to-metal contact. Over time, however, as the oil becomes used, it loses its cleaning properties.

The oil filter keeps the oil clean by trapping abrasive particles in the oil, and removing them from the lubrication system before they can cause excessive wear.

Made from resin-coated, pleated paper, a good filter traps more than 95 percent of the contaminants. But, over a long period of time the contaminants may build up and clog the filter.

If it is not changed on a regular basis, a bypass valve will open, allowing unfiltered dirty oil to circulate through the engine, accelerating engine wear.

A small investment reaps big rewards

Many auto manufacturers recommend oil and filter changes every 7,500 to 10,000 miles. However, you can greatly increase the life of your engine and reduce the chance of costly engine repairs by changing these intervals in half. This will add about 10 oil and filter changes over 100,000 miles of operation.

When you do the change yourself, this represents an investment of about $100 over the life of the car.

Planning ahead

Before you change your oil and filter for the first time, make sure you have everything you need.

cool down enough so you will not burn yourself when you remove the oil drain plug.

If you plan to use ramps, set leaks, especially around the filter. Stop the engine, let it stand for a few minutes, and check the oil level using the dipstick. Add enough oil to being the level up to the full mark.

Four the old oil into a plastic container. Take it back to the store where you bought your new oil to dispose of it properly—don't pour it down the drain.

Your oil and filter change is done! For about $10, you've done a most effective preventive maintenance job to ensure many miles of trouble-free, fuel-efficient service.

the parking brake before you begin, then spread old newspapers on the ground under the oil pan and position your container under the oil drain plug.

Loosen the drain plug with the drain plug wrench, and unscrew it with your fingers.

Place a container under the filter. Remove the old filter by turning it counterclockwise with the filter wrench. If the filter is hard to remove (either difficult to reach or overtightened), try a different type of filter wrench.

If all else fails, drive a screwdriver through the body of the filter with a hammer, and then use the extra leverage provided by the crewdriver handle to remove the filter. Thoroughly clean the mounting base. Be sure to check to see that the old "O" gasket was removed.

Now you are ready to install the new filter. First, smear a

THE OIL FILTER keeps the oil clean by trapping abrasive particles, and removing them from the lubrication system before they can cause excessive wear. If the filter is not changed on a regular basis, a bypass valve will open, allowing unfiltered, dirty oil to circulate through the engine, accelerating engine wear.

The tools you use are inexpensive and easy to find; a container that fits under the oil pan and is large enough to hold all the oil that drains out (four to six quarts); an oil drain plug wrench; an oil filter wrench; and a small plastic funnel.

You will also need an oil filter and oil. Buy a high quality filter. The new filter should have the correct part number recommended for the vehicle.

Buy enough oil for a complete oil change (check your car's manual for the right grade). It's important to buy a high quality, reputable brand. The oil will work better and last longer.

Changing your oil and filter

Oil and filter changes are most efficient when the engine is warm. Dirt and other particles are suspended in warm oil and drain more easily from the engine.

Begin by taking a short drive to warm up the car. Stop the car on level ground and leave it for ten minutes. This will let the oil

Kiln Auto Parts owners Ann Franzen and Chuck Franzen III, at back, and employees Charlene Hughes and Becky Paris man the counter at the store, which features an ample stock of automotive supplies. A repair shop is adjacent to the retail store.

Tire care tips for improving fuel economy

- Maintain proper tire inflation—between 20 and 35 pounds per square inch (psi). Underinflation of four or more psi can reduce fuel economy by at least five percent and tire life as much as 40 percent.
- Check the placard in the glove box or on the driver's door for the vehicle's recommended tire pressure.
- Check tire pressure at least once every two weeks with a reliable air pressure gauge.

- Valve stems should have a plastic or metal cap. Plastic caps keep out the dirt, but metal ones have a rubber gasket that seals against leakage.
- Rotate tires every 10,000 miles.
- Check the alignment of your vehicle once a year. Misaligned tires can cause the car to drag, lowering mileage and causing unnecessary wear on the tires.

Wrong wax can remove car's mirror-like shine

Many commonly-used wax products can actually dull your new car's reflective finish. They use a combination of wax or silicone and a harsh abrasive polish to remove oxidized paint.

These abrasives can roughen the surface with thousands of tiny fine scratches.

The scratched paint can't reflect light as well as smooth paint. This results in an overall reduction in shine.

These days, people are waxing more often to protect their cars from the almost-impossible-to-remove, water-spotting effects of acid rain. Frequent waxing with polishes containing abrasives causes unnecessary removal and deterioration of paint.

Your new car should not be exposed to these strong paint-removing abrasives. It just needs washing and a follow-up with a good abrasive-free wax. Older cars with paint really dulled will need a very mild polishing cleaner to restore the high gloss. Then apply a non-abrasive wax.

Many popular waxes that are supposedly non-abrasive in fact contain abrasives. If a manufacturer's wax promises to remove dirt, oxidized paint or small scratches, you can be sure it contains more than just wax.

Early car wax products were abrasive-free. If an abrasive polish was needed, it was sold separately and by the coarseness of the abrasive used, from strong rubbing compounds to extremely mild polishes.

The best waxes were made with imported Carnauba wax. Growing on a select group of palm trees in Brazil, the natural wax protects the tender leaves from the harsh sun and long rainy periods common in the rain forests.

Handy Tips To Help You Turn Your Wheels Into A Masterpiece

Spring cleaning on wheels: Here's how to conquer the top five cleaning problems

If your house looks like too big a spring cleaning project to tackle, don't despair—you can get instant gratification for the spring cleaning bug...in your driveway.

In less than three hours you can clean up, clean out and clean off most common car care concerns and drive off to a "spring fling."

Here are the top five cleaning problems most motorists face each spring—and how to conquer each. All it takes is a little know-how to get you on your way.

• With road "hazards" such as road tar, grime, bug and bird residue, cold, heat, acid rain and hard water bombarding my car each day, what steps make tire cleaning and protection.

• My car is deep down dirty from the winter elements—how can I make sure it comes clean?

It may sound a little crazy, but wash your car—then wash it again! First, wash with a car wash formulated for hard water (not dishwashing soap, which is damaging to paint), with a sheeting action to remove the paint-damaging residue that builds up on your car.

Then, before it dries, wash your car again to remove the five percent of dirt that the first wash left behind that does the most damage to your paint during the drying process.

• Cleaning "tools" are so expensive. What are the best car—far surpassing a more abrasive chamois or terry cloth towel.

The fine-sprayer attachment for your garden hose makes an excellent car wash tool—repeated use of too strong a water blast can weaken your car's paint.

• How can I protect my car from the elements?

Waxing protects your car in two ways. First, it leaves a protective coating on the paint to guard against those elements, or hazards, mentioned above.

And, second, it reduces drag or friction on the paint surface during future washings.

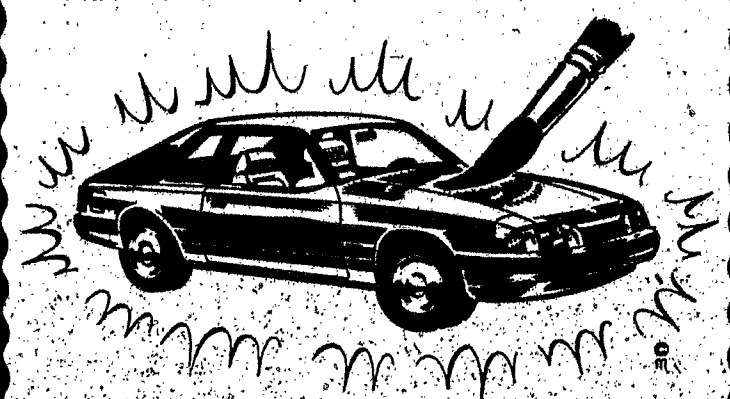

Most cars today require a low-abrasive, long-lasting water beading wax. The safest way to apply it is to place the wax on the application rag (a baby diaper comes in handy here) and apply to the car in a circular motion. Then, allow the wax to dry to a haze and buff it away with a smooth, soft cotton/flannel cloth (another diaper).

• Do I really need to use protectant on the dashboard, tires and interior?

Absolutely. A quality silicone-based protectant guards against ozone, oxygen and ultraviolet light rays which can crack, dull, harden and fade these items.

It also makes these surfaces anti-static to repel dust and dirt. Used as directed, protectant can add years to your car's dash, tires and vinyl accessories.

Used cars, too, can be saved from inner body rust-through

Automotive corrosion technology has come a long way in recent years, but inner body rust will remain a threat to the lifespan of vehicles as long as they are built with steel and other corrosion-prone materials.

As a result, after market rust protection companies like Ziebart work diligently on behalf of consumers to help control corrosion once the vehicle has left the assembly line.

But what about older vehicles that have not benefited from new corrosion technology? The average age of automobiles on the road today is approaching eight years, according to the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Most of these vehicles, including those that already have developed rust, can be saved from a premature trip to the scrap yard, says Ziebart. Ziebart pioneered an engineered system of automotive rust protection in 1963, and is the industry front-runner in the development of state-of-the-art corrosion technology, specifically designed to inhibit rust in used vehicles.

"We find that car owners who would like to extend the productive life of their vehicle are searching for a low-cost option which will protect and preserve them from corrosion," says Dan Janssen, president of Ziebart Corporation.

That option is possible with Ziebart's multi-level Used Car Rust Protection System I to IV. The result of years of research and development, as well as extensive field and laboratory testing, the systems feature a specially-designed sealant—Formula Xtra.

Systems I and II offer low-cost, short-term rust protection with annually renewable sealant coverage of up to 36 critical areas of the vehicle that are most susceptible to rust.

Long-term, total protection of used cars is available with systems III and IV, both of which provide corrosion protection to 84 areas of the vehicle and which are offered with a Ziebart warranty.

System IV also includes the application of Ziebart's exclusive Rust Eliminator, which neutralizes existing rust prior to the sealant application process.

Wax

As the costs of gathering and importing this wax skyrocketed, chemists created cheaper "wax-less" substitutes.

Abrasives were mixed into their new formulations to aid in removing "dead" paint.

They were billed as the lazy man's one-step car polish. Unfortunately, they've never been able to equal the extreme high gloss and no-scratch properties of pure Carnauba wax.

And when used often, the abrasives unnecessarily remove good paint and clear coat finishes.

Since the change from pure Carnauba to man-made synthetics progressed over many years, only the astute consumer realized he was getting less shine for his money. Only a side-by-side comparison of waxes will truly show what is best for your car!

FEASIBILITY STUDY/DOCKSIDE GAMING
Voters of Hancock County approved a dockside gaming referendum in 1990 that allows gaming on dockside vessels. Gaming, size of vessels, and other restrictions are set by state law and will be regulated by the Mississippi State Tax Commission. Based on the most recently passed dockside gaming laws, the City of Bay St. Louis, MS, desires a feasibility study addressing issues such as appropriate location of gaming facilities, number of gaming facilities, type of gaming facilities, and necessary support services.

PHASE II
DESIGN GUIDELINE STUDY
The City of Bay St. Louis, MS, requires the development of guidelines and planning recommendations for possible dockside gaming facilities. These guidelines would address such areas as methods of providing utility services to possible dockside gaming sites, on site and off site parking, signage, public and private support facilities and other infrastructure.

PHASE III
COMPREHENSIVE ZONING STUDY
Bay St. Louis originally adopted a zoning ordinance in 1964. Since that time the City has experienced major change. A new comprehensive study of the City is needed. This study will be critical in terms of development and preservation, and will address issues such as old city limits, recent annexation, future annexation, recreation areas, signage, new mixed use, historical preservation, industrial areas and other zoning and regulatory issues. A new Zoning Ordinance and Map will be required.

Those interested in submitting qualifications should request a complete information package from the City of Bay St. Louis, MS, P.O. Box 2550, Bay St. Louis, MS 39521-2550, (601) 467-9002, FAX (601) 467-3905. Firms may submit qualifications for one, two or all three areas of work and should request information packages for respective areas.
